REV. J. W. BROUGHER TO DELIVER SERMON

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 20.—There was a trace of a smile around the lips of Will Rogers today as he lay in death in the Forest Lawn funeral home. With his eyes gently closed, it seemed as if, in pleasant slumber, dreams floating through his mind, caused that smile.

Smile On Face
Somehow, the impression Will Rogers was happy—that old familiar, sly, sort of smile he so often displayed—could not be erased from the minds of the few privileged to see him lying in a bronze but plain casket, delicately lined with white satin.

He seemed so natural—dressed in his usual blue serge suit, a plain tie matching his somber colored shirt—and still that smile that even as one watched, seemed to twitch at his lips.

Will Rogers, for a time, will rest here—but his famed companion of the airways and death—Wiley Post, will start his last flight sometime before noon today. He will fly to Oklahoma City where grieving relatives and friends will meet the funeral plane and then transport his earthly remains to Maryville, Okla., for burial.

Even last night, when the bodies of the pair arrived at 6:19 p. m. in the silver colored funeral ship, there somehow was something in the sight

PA NEW OBSERVES

You don't think much about Christmas when the weather is as hot as it is and yet, in a store room at The Castleton yesterday, Pa. New saw Santa Claus' advance display of some of his 1935 toys. One of his salesmen, calling here, was exhibiting to local toy merchants the newest offerings of the busy factory of old Saint Nick.

And now machinery for fleas. A North Hill citizen was seen this morning using the vacuum cleaner on the family dog in an effort to draw out the fleas. Ought to be careful or the dog might get pulled in.

Elgin McConnell, of Neshannock township, brought to The News today an insect for which no one seems to be able to provide a correct scientific name. It has a toothpick fuselage, six long legs, two long feelers and a tiny looped "tail." Measures a little over three inches from loop to feeler tip.

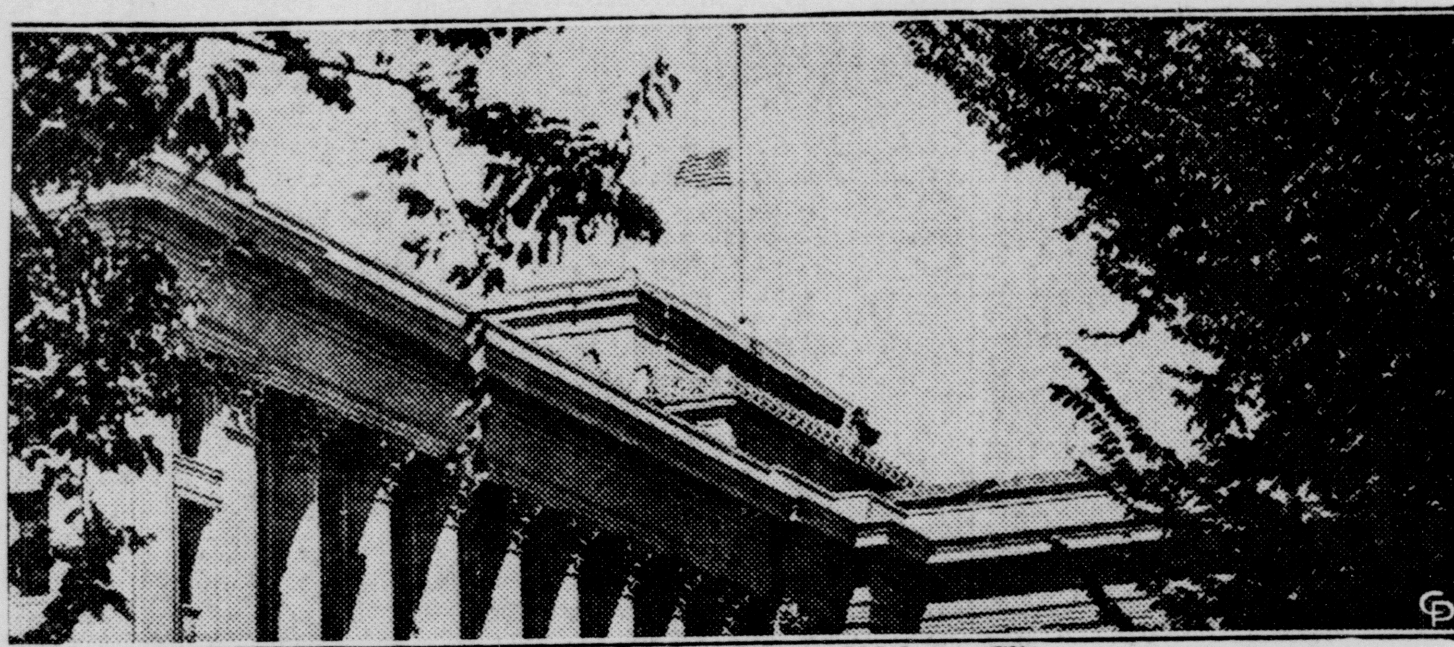

Its soon fair time and the first entry for the New Castle Fair has been entered, a four-in-hand team of mules entered by the Wilson

Mourning is deep throughout Oklahoma for Will Rogers and Wiley Post, killed in an Alaska airplane crash. Above, flag is flown at half mast on capitol of Oklahoma City; street scene in Claremore, with flag lowered on Hotel Rogers in background, and Post's mother on the front porch of the Post home in Maysville. New Difficulties Block Progress Of Works Relief

State Directors Protest Short Time Jobs Will Not Solve Problem

QUESTION END OF DIRECT RELIEF

Hopkins Insists He Will End Direct Relief By November 1

By L. W. MEREDITH
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—New problems arose today to plague the $4,000,000,000 work relief chieftains in their efforts to end direct relief by Nov. 1 by having jobs under way by that time for the 3,500,000 employable on relief rolls.

State and regional directors of the WPA, headed by Harry L. Hopkins, leaders of the new $50,000,000 national youth administration; and visiting state and local officials brought in problems that aroused doubts as to the possibility of ending direct relief within less than eleven weeks.

Return Of Relief Needs
And if it is ended, at least temporarily, the problem will then be to keep relief needs from breaking out again during the winter.

First, the works relief program, Charles C. Stillman, state WPA director of Ohio and one of the veterans of Hopkins' administration, pointed out that the program, while developing rapidly now, will have to be pushed with much greater speed to provide work for all employable by Nov. 1.

His own state has provided jobs for only 30,000 of approximately

Guardsmen Get Down To Work

Infantile Paralysis Scare Is Over And National Guards Start Maneuvers

(International News Service)
INDIANTOWN Gap, Pa., Aug. 20.—An infantile paralysis scare ended almost as soon as it began, national guardsmen from Pennsylvania and Maryland training here with regular army units today concentrated on field training work.

All units were driving hard at "war games" lessons scheduled to occupy the attention of the 15,000 men in uniform during the first week of the encampment, as the preliminary to mimic warfare scheduled for next week.

Far and wide over the hundreds of acres nestled in the Blue mountain sector which comprise this reservation and the one at Mt. Gretna the guardsmen and army privates trained in scouting to detect the presence of an enemy and discover his strength.

Get Instructions

Artillerymen and machine gun units were being given instructions in problems most particularly affecting their occupation at the front. Medical units were given hospital training and taught how to carry a litter to maintain telephone between trenches under fire.

The infantile scare developed when it became known that the entire 6th

Baldwin Calls Special Meeting Of Cabinet To Consider Threat

MAY ABANDON ARMS EMBARGO

By H. K. REYNOLDS

LONDON, Aug. 20.—Cabinet ministers hurried back to London today in an atmosphere reminiscent of August, 1914, and an emergency session of parliament became a probability as the conviction grew that Italy's Abyssinian designs threaten Britain's paramount position in the Mediterranean and near East.

Prime minister Stanley Baldwin, who is now in France, ordered a special cabinet meeting for Thursday.

Several ministers are expected to call for "sanctions"—at least passive economic and financial pressure against Italy—but other cabinet members insist no such dangerous decision must be taken without consulting the house of commons.

Tropical Storm Is Moving Northward

(International News Service)
NEW ORLEANS, La., Aug. 20.—The first tropical disturbance of the season, which has been centered north of Porto Rico for the past two days, apparently is increasing in intensity, it was announced here today by the hurricane forecast division of the United States weather bureau.

At 9 a. m. (CST) today the disturbance was centered about 475 miles north and slightly west of Porto Rico and was moving in a northwesterward or north-northwesterward direction. It had moved nearly 100 miles since 2:30 p. m. yesterday, it was announced.

Caution was advised for all vessels in its pathway.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 20.—Thirty-five thousand workers on Mexican sugar haciendas went on a general strike today, demanding a higher minimum wage.

Valuable Horses Struck By Auto Had To Be Shot

Team Worth Over $500, Belonging To C. A. Stewart, Get Out Of Field

DRIVER OF AUTO NOT BADLY HURT

Two horses belonging to C. A. Stewart of near Bessemer were struck by an automobile driven by a man named Beight about 2 o'clock Monday morning and so badly injured that they had to be shot.

The horses were heavy matched sorrels and were valued at over $500. Mr. Stewart had turned them out to pasture on Sunday evening. He saw that the gate to the pasture field was securely locked.

Sometime during the night the gate was opened, either carelessly or maliciously, Mr. Stewart does not know which, and the horses got out. They were proceeding along the road side by side on the right hand side, it is said, when Beight, in his automobile, ran into them from the rear. The hind legs of both horses were broken and they were so badly injured that they had to be shot.

The automobile in which Mr. Beight was riding was ditched and damaged to some extent. He escaped serious injury. Mr. Stewart believes that the gate was left open by some careless person who was traveling through his fields. He does not know of any enemies who would maliciously open the gate.

Mr. Stewart says that this is not the first time that gates have been left open on his farm, but it is the first time that any serious damage has resulted.

Beight, whose car struck the horses, is said to live in Ohio, near the state line.

Sergeant Morgan Gets Promotion

Man Who Went To Aid Of Wiley Post And Will Rogers Given Top Ranking Post

(International News Service)
WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—Sergeant Stanley R. Morgan, army signal corps stationed at Point Barrow, Alaska, who organized the party to recover the bodies of Will Rogers and Wiley Post, following their airplane crash, has been promoted to the grade of Master Sergeant, secretary of War Department today. This is the highest non-commission rank in the army.

Dern said Morgan was promoted "in recognition of his initiative, the thoughtfulness, and fine judgment in organizing and directing the recovery of the noted crash victims."

Morgan had had an excellent military record over the past 15 years and only six months ago distinguished himself during an influenza epidemic among the natives on the Arctic Coast. He is a native of Payson, Utah.

Receive Approval For Use Of Post Office For WPA

Director Downie Announces Receipt Of Approval For Use Of Old Building

WILL REMODEL TO SUIT PLAN

The local Works Progress Administration staff will establish its headquarters in New Castle's old post office at North and North Mercer streets within a short time, it was indicated today when J. Vae Downie, WPA director for District 14, announced that he has been notified of the formal approval of WPA's application for the use of the vacant building.

When the switch in headquarters from the South Mill street relief quarters will be made could not be told.

At Harrisburg today it was probable that WPA's own plans for re-vamping the building's interior to suit its needs would be laid before state authorities for their approval. The draft of changes, prepared by WPA architects here, would fit the building for the work which the organization will be called upon to do and would rearrange it somewhat to meet special needs.

With Harrisburg's formal approval, it is estimated two weeks will be required to make the necessary changes before occupancy can be made.

"We cannot estimate when we will enter the old post office," Director Downie commented, "because we cannot say when the plans will be approved at Harrisburg. It will take about two weeks after the plans are approved to make the designated changes."

The vacant post office building has been unoccupied since the new federal building was opened December 15, 1934.

Council Reports Bond Refunding

Also Report Bill Designating Fire Department Quota At Forty Men

They reported favorably from committee the Hoyland measure for the refunding of bonds and the Davies bill designating the quota of the paid fire department, exclusive of the chief and his assistant at 40 firemen.

The Davies measure in effect said that the six men appointed recently to the paid fire department were probationers and after working vacation periods of regular firemen would be furloughed until they are needed. They were named last week so that their eligibility under civil service regulations would not be impaired.

Hopson Given Stern Warning

Notice Served On Howard C. Hopson That He Must Change His Tactics

(International News Service)
WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—While the senate sergeant-at-arms and a deputy sat close by, the senate lobby committee today served formal notice on Howard C. Hopson, utility magnate that he must change his tactics and attitude as a witness, or face a new contempt citation.

Hopson and the committee members have frequently engaged in heated verbal clashes. Hopson's shouted "you aren't trying to get the truth" still stands unretreated in the record.

At the outset of today's hearing, the chairman, Senator Black (D) of Alabama, sternly warning that there must be "no more of this."

Wilson Explains Reason For Fine

Owner Of Field Used By Local Aviator Had Not Secured License

Findley C. Wilson, local pilot who had accompanied Homer Gardner to Emonton, August 11, when the latter met his death when his plane crashed, today denied that he had been fined for transporting passengers in his airplane without a proper license, as had been stated in a news dispatch from Emonton, yesterday.

Mr. Wilson states that he holds a transport pilot's license, which is the highest class of license obtainable, entitling him to transport passengers, instruct students, carry mail, or engage in any type of commercial flying.

The fine which was assessed against him was because of the fact that the owner of the field, which he and Gardner had used that day, had neglected to take out a license. Both men believed that it was a licensed field, as it had formerly been used as an emergency landing field by the United Airlines, and had been improved by the United States Government as an emergency landing field. The field was in excellent condition.

M. L. Cunningham, the aeronautical inspector, inspected the New Castle airport recently, and has issued a license for the field here, which gives the local operators the right to engage in all types of flying and instruction.

Aged Will Get $100,375 Here

Old Age Assistance Appropriation For Lawrence County Is Announced

TO BE BASED ON NEED NEXT YEAR

Announcement was made today by Secretary of Welfare, J. Evans Scheele, that the sum of $100,375 has been allocated to Lawrence county to provide assistance for the aged, under the terms of the old age assistance legislation passed by the legislature.

The allocations this year are based on population ratios, while those for the second half of the period, which covers the biennium, will be apportioned on the basis of need, as shown by the first year's operation.

Butler county was allotted $83,059; Beaver county, $153,839; and Mercer county, $102,426.

Voting Machines Will Be Doubled

Number Of Candidates Makes It Necessary To Double Up On Machines

(International News Service)
PITTSBURGH, Aug. 20.—Because of the large number of candidates for political offices in the city, it was believed today that two voting machines will be necessary instead of one for each September primary ballot setup on the machines to be used in the city.

Nearly double the usual number of machines will be required in Pittsburgh unless wholesale withdrawals of candidates are made today—the last day an office-seeker may have his name removed from the ballot.

According to present plans, candidates of the two major political parties at the primaries will be set up on two separate machines. The election department was of the opinion the primary ballot for the three third-class cities, McKeesport, Duquesne and Clairton, can be set up on a single machine.

Leaders Expect Adjournment By Saturday Night

Jam Through "Must" Bills With Probability Of Trouble On Utility Bill

HOUSE OFFERS SIX POINT ALTERNATIVE

Democratic Leaders Fear Utility Issue As A Campaign Argument In 1936

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—Congress raced toward its goal of "must" legislation today with leaders nervously watching for an explosion which might upset adjournment plans.

Unless the Democratic machines in Senate and House are stalled, adjournment was in sight by Saturday night.

Within 24 hours after a new list of "must" legislation was framed at a White House conference, senate and house both were operating at top speed.

Bank Bills

The omnibus banking bill, revising the federal reserve law and making the $5,000 maximum bank deposit insurance permanent, was sent to the White House today. A railroad retirement bill also passed both bodies.

While the senate began debate on the Guffey-Snyder coal bill, setting up a "little NRA" for the soft coal industry, the house hammered away at an accumulation of miscellaneous bills.

A showdown on the utilities holding company bill—perhaps the biggest stumbling block to enactment of the "must" program of 10 bills—was expected today.

President Roosevelt himself held the key. He was reported to be willing to accept a compromise on the "death sentence" clause but the report was disputed in some quarters.

As the senate-house conference met, the house group offered a 6-point alternative compromise plan. This included making the measure purely regulatory, limiting it to operating companies, restricting service charges of holding companies, or merely passing what can be agreed on and letting the rest go until next session.

Wheeler Fights On
Senator Wheeler (D) of Montana, bitter foe of the holding companies was fighting for a "death sentence" even though less drastic than that contained in the senate bill.

Democratic councils were torn over the prospect of making the utilities bill a campaign issue in 1936. Leaders among the 150 democratic senators and representatives who opposed the president on the issue declared that the party would split if it is made an issue.

Status of other "must" measures included:

Agreement in sight on TVA amendments, federal alcohol control bill and tax measure, the gold clause bill was in conference, the house judiciary committee held the government contracts bill and senate approval of the railroad reorganization bill was expected.

A few more weeks and then the bell and school is on its way, and then for work and study hall, it's ninety one so day.

ASSEMBLY MISSES "DEADLINE"

Referendum On Movies May Be Out This Year

Legislators Forget To Include Deadline For Presentation Of Petitions

LOCAL AUTHORITIES MAY DECIDE DATE

By WILLIAM THEIS
International News Service Staff Correspondent
(Copyright, 1935, By International News Service)
HARRISBURG, Aug. 20.—Like the thrill-packed continuity of a movie serial, there was "trouble ahead" today in the next episode of Pennsylvania's Sunday movie campaign—and all because the legislature forgot one clause in the referendum bill.

Unless local authorities take matters into their own hands, it appeared today that in some instances communities may be denied a Sunday movie referendum at the forthcoming municipal election.

Forget Deadline
No mention was made in the movie bill of a deadline for filing petitions demanding a referendum on the long-troublesome issue. The legislative oversight, some authorities said, means that petitions may be represented up to the day the question is to be settled at the polls—November 5.

Ballots must be printed some days before the election. Normal procedure calls for a deadline for referendum petitions, fixed usually 60 days before the voting date.

Although the bill definitely provides a 60-day deadline for any further referendum after 1935, no mention is made of a "last day" for filing petitions this fall.

As enacted, the Sunday movie bill provided that a referendum may be called upon presentation of petitions to the county commissioners from a city or borough council, township commissioners or supervisors, or from electors equal to at least five per cent of the highest vote cast for any candidate in the last preceding general election.

Already queries have trickled into the state elections bureau from four or five counties.

"The bill provides no deadline for petitions," they point out. "What are we to do about time for hearing protests? What about printing of ballots?"

No Official Reply
The election bureau has no official reply. Lacking the authority to advise municipalities on the matter, the bureau has merely suggested that commissioners or supervisors consult their local solicitors for a solution to the mix-up.

The emergency action that seemed most likely to result from this course was that county commissioners would fix an arbitrary deadline for receiving petitions. Any legal questioning of their act would then be defended with the argument that this was the necessary and "reasonable" thing to do to preserve the voters' right to a referendum and save the taxpayers' money.

NEW DIFFICULTIES BLOCK PROGRESS OF WORKS RELIEF

300,000 employables on relief rolls. Projects are pending in Washington, awaiting official approval. That would provide jobs for 157,000 more—but only for two and one-half months.

Short Time Job

Similar reports have been pouring in from other states. Of short-time jobs, the WPA has worked up thousands in the states—such as park improvement, soil erosion, swamp drainage, gutting of streets and improvement of secondary roads.

"But in the north, particularly, road work cannot be carried on to any great extent in the winter months," Stillman pointed out. "Usually road work ends in the northern states about Labor Day."

"Also, heavy construction jobs, such as public works projects, also are greatly handicapped, if not completely halted, by cold weather."

"These are two major parts of the job program. What can be done with the workers on such projects when winter comes? If work cannot be provided for them, will relief again be necessary?"

Hopkins himself pointed out to state administrators of the national youth administration, holding a two-day session here for instructions, the importance of finding suitable winter projects—and the difficulties the administration faces in finding them.

"But the president," he said, "wants us to put 3,500,000 employables from the relief rolls to work by Nov. 1, and we are going to do it."

Three Are Being Hunted, Believed Victims Of Crash

(International News Service)

DENVER, Aug. 20.—Search for Richard R. Arnett, 28, his bride of three weeks, Eleanor, 23, and Burnside Smith, 47, all of Indianapolis, Ind., and supposedly victims of an airplane crash, centered today on the north face of Laramie Peak, famous landmark on the plains of eastern Wyoming.

The three Indians were last seen at 2:30 p. m. on Thursday, Aug. 15, when they took off from Helena, Mont., airport in Arnett's plane for Denver.

Wait Higley, Denver aviator who flew to Glendo, Wyo., at the request of E. R. Ribbets of San Antonio, Texas, to seek the missing trio, said he was confident the bodies would be found in the crashed plane within a mile-square area on the north slope of the mountain.

Higley based his belief on information given him by ranchers in the vicinity, who reported they saw a plane circle, then crash in flames.

OPEN SENIOR HIGH OFFICE FOR TERM

Ready To Accommodate Students; Enrollment Figure Now 2,050

Senior high school's office opened for the 1935-36 school term on Monday, Principal Frank L. Orth announced today. It will be open daily from 8:30 a. m. to 5 p. m., with noon the closing hour on Saturday.

The principal today urged new students and post-graduate students to report to the school office immediately to have their study schedules worked out.

"The schedules must be drawn up before September 9, the day school opens," Mr. Orth said. "Heretofore, we have accommodated a last-minute rush of students and tried to arrange things for them. That cannot be done this year. All schedules must be completed before the ninth."

Mr. Orth today reported that an enrollment of 2,050 students is now on file but that figure should increase within the next week or so. Not more than a third of the post-graduate group that attended last term has signed up so far for the coming semester.

During part of the vacation months, the school office has been closed.

PUBLIC SERVICE IS PLANNED FOR HOLLYWOOD BOWL

of the cold canvas which then encased the broken body of Will Rogers as well as that of the flier—gave enough cause for the most veteran of death spectators to pause for meditation.

Circles Field
Shortly before, with the slanting rays of a setting sun, striking fire-like reflections from the sides of the gleaming metal, the funeral plane circled the field, made a quick landing, taxied to a hangar and rested her cargo of broken humanity.

On that flight from Seattle to Glendale, the two still bodies were accompanied by mutual friends in life.

At the controls of the ship was William A. Winston of Texas with whom the humorist often had flown; Co-Pilot J. L. Fleming, Radioman T. W. Ward, Co. Clarence P. Young, coast manager for Pan American Airways, and Joe Crosson, who flew the bodies from the scene of the disaster in Alaska to Seattle.

It was a group of grief-stricken men. None cared to speak of the trip but finally Crosson agreed to act as spokesman for his companions on the death ride.

"We have completed the most difficult task ever assigned—difficult not because of the flying or country involved—but because of the purpose of the flight," he said. "I was a group of men who had a part in the flight both in Alaska and in the United States. I know, felt this mission might express in a small way the deep debt all American aviation owes to Will Rogers and Wiley Post."

Small Crowd
There weren't many to meet the two victims outside press representatives and 50 police. There perhaps was a meager 200.

On Thursday morning the public—the same public which with their hearts cherished the Oklahoma cowboy—will be allowed to slowly pass the mortal remains of the humorist as they rest beneath the trees of Forest Lawn. Later in the day private funeral services will be held but exact disposal of the body has not been determined.

The services will be conducted by Rev. J. Whitcomb Brougher, Methodist minister, lifelong friend of the columnist and who interrupted a lecture tour at Portland, Ore., so as to be able to make a final tribute. As the lawn outside the wee Kirk of the Heather is cleared of those who will march by the bier of Rogers in silent tribute, those same mourners, countless thousands of them, will flock to Hollywood Bowl where at 2 p. m., the same hour set for the private services, the public will pay its last public tribute to the philosopher in an impressively solemn service.

After both services the body, according to tentative arrangements, will be placed in a crypt in Forest

Lawn cemetery near the bodies of other famed actors of the stage and screen.

How long the body will remain there before it is transported to Claremore, Okla., the Rogers' family home, for final burial has not been decided. That decision will not be made until the widow, two sons and daughter of the humorist, arrive here tomorrow.

Union Air Terminal, Los Angeles, Aug. 20.—Wiley Post, famed round-the-world flyer, today started the last lap of his final airplane venture without his companion in death, Will Rogers.

The body of the pilot, who died in the waters of a little Alaskan creek near Point Barrow, when his "little red bus" crashed, snuffing out his life and that of his equally famed philosopher companion, still was encoined in its canvas shroud as the plane roared down the runway here at exactly 6 a. m.

With Post on his last long ride through the skyways was the same crew which piloted the silver-like Douglas transport of Pan American Airways from Seattle.

William A. Weston, veteran Texas pilot and close friend of both Post and Rogers, was at the controls. As passengers rode Joe Crosson, Alaska minister for League of Nations affairs, and foreign minister Sir Samuel Hoare met today to weigh the grave problems resulting from the collapse of the three-power conversations at Paris and the failure of the Italo-Abyssinian commission to name a fifth arbitrator.

Premier Stanley Baldwin and Chamberlain of the exchequer Neville Chamberlain were expected to break off their holidays on the continent and Ramsay MacDonald, lord president of the council, was due here today.

Abandonment of the arms export embargo, is anticipated, and later, at the League Council meeting, September 4, moves may be made to reimpose the embargo only as concerns Italy.

Rome, Aug. 20.—In a new threat to the supremacy of the British navy in the Mediterranean sea, Premier Benito Mussolini today increased the Italian air force, his shock troops for the Abyssinian campaign, by 16,000 flyers.

Italy now has an air force of nearly 200,000 men of whom 40,483 are officially stated to be trained pilots.

field artillery of the regular army had been quarantined when Private J. P. Holland, New York, developed suspicious symptoms. A thorough diagnosis of the soldier's case at the Carlisle army barracks hospital, however, convinced officers that Holland suffered tonsillitis and not infantile paralysis. And the quarantine was lifted.

The extraordinary precautions were taken because of the fact that Virginia and District of Columbia guardsmen and army units have been barred from the encampment due to the epidemic in that sector. Some of the Virginia army units already were here when the order went into effect, however. They left before the encampment started.

CHILDREN'S PARTY IS MERRY OCCASION

Monday was a big day in the lives of seventeen little tots who were invited to the summer cottage of Mr. and Mrs. William C. Falls, along Neshannock Creek, above Neshannock Falls, in celebration of the birthday of their little daughter, Marilyn, who was five.

Early in the afternoon, several of the mothers gathered up the wee ones and took them in automobiles to the Falls cottage, where upon arrival, they were "let loose." Needless to say, they had a grand time, for many of them had their swimming suits with them and besides wading in the water, they played games, had fun on a big slide and swings and then had lunch.

Last, but by no means least, this feature was decidedly enjoyed for Mrs. Falls had the long table in the yard arranged in a pretty color scheme of yellow and green with small plant favors at each place. A large birthday cake graced one end, while on the other end, was placed a small saw replica, on which were swung attractive dolls.

Aides in serving and looking after the children, during the afternoon were Mrs. James H. Buckner, little Marilyn's aunt, Mrs. Fred Lindorfer, Mrs. Eugene Swisher, Mrs. George H. Andrews, and Mrs. Earl Campbell.

Lovely presents were presented to the guest of honor to commemorate a joyous occasion.

Conclude Visit

Mr. and Mrs. William Flaughter of Shaker Heights, Cleveland, O., have concluded a visit with their sister, Mrs. John Dopp of Moravia street extension. While in this vicinity, they motored to Ellwood City, Alliance, O., and Youngstown, O., where they visited with friends and relatives. They left for their Ohio home on Sunday.

Here From California

Mrs. Vera Reeves and son Paul of San Fernando, Cal., are guests for several days at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Williams on West Washington street, this city.

PRICE OF TYRANNY

NAIVE observers, returning from Italy or Germany, frequently comment on the improved conditions realized under dictatorial rule—the clean streets, the efficient railroad service, the official courtesy, the well conducted hotels and the general stability of national life.

These conditions—and that they exist in several of Europe's outstanding dictatorships no thinking person will deny—are some times held forth as justifying the displacement of democratic institutions with government tyranny.

However, it is well to consider the price of the advantages thus afforded—the price of suppressed public opinion, unbending newspaper censorship, brutal treatment of minority groups, race prejudice, irresponsible administration and haughty maintenance of rigid bureaucracy.

To a discerning advocate of American democracy, this cost is far too high. Popular government may lack some of the immediate efficiencies of one-man rule, but it is far more likely to satisfy the human craving for individual independence and personal freedom.

FEWER CCC RECRUITS

There is much of an encouraging nature to be found in the difficulty being experienced by the civilian conservation corps in enlisting the 326,000 additional members authorized by congress. From June 15 to August 3, only 135,260 enlistments had been recorded, notwithstanding that this movement offers to unemployed young men the advantages of work under healthful conditions which have caused hundreds of thousands to thrive, both physically and in spirit; also board, shelter, clothing and medical care, in addition to $30 per month, of which $25 goes to the workers' families.

Among the young men themselves the CCC has been popular and its attractions have readily been recognized. But conditions which have altered for the better have served to reduce the number of applicants. Recruits are limited to those from families on relief, and the records show that not only in New Jersey, but also in most parts of the country, the relief lists are being reduced. In addition, youths are finding employment on work-relief projects, on farms and on construction jobs.

It is cheering to observe that in this particular unemployment relief agency there is a scarcity of clients. This is a sign of improvement whose significance is not to be ignored.

PREMIUM ON COMPETENCY

"If democracy is to endure," remarks Dean Harno, of the University of Illinois law school, "it is fundamental that it insist on placing responsibilities in competent hands."

The wisdom of this observation cannot be seriously disputed. Representative government is dependent to a large extent upon personnel. When legislators and executives are characterized by easy morals, inadequate training and inefficiency not to say downright corruption, public affairs naturally become subject to all manner of vicious influences.

The difficulty is, of course, to induce high class men to run for public office and then to get the voters to support them. These goals, however, must be constantly sought if popular control of governmental institutions is to be permanently justified.

But the chief reason for sending the kids to college is the fact that the Joneses did.

PURITY OF DICTION REMAINS A WORTHY INVESTMENT

You have become decidedly rusty in a subject with which you were very familiar at one time.

Little rules which would be of great assistance to you, if you remembered, have been forgotten through disuse.

You avoid discussions and manage to cover up your deficiencies; yet you write because you have forgotten these fundamentals.

In speaking and in writing you often realize that you are puzzled and cannot bring to mind the application of the rule which would settle your problem.

So many people with whom you associate make mistakes that would seem unpardonable so far as education is concerned.

They are good business men, too, but they have grown careless, talking a commercial vernacular.

And you, too, have fallen into the habit of speaking carelessly.

There may be some excuse for them but there is no excuse for you. You chose to pick up the vocabulary of an ignorant class, and now a position is open that you might have had, if you had not assumed the speech of those who do not know better.

TERROR AT POINTE AUX BARQUES

The peace of the evening was broken with terrible cries of distress. There were warnings and shrieks from the tree tops and the reason no mortal could guess.

The terrified robins were winging a mad flight from tree unto tree though sounding the signal of danger and telling their neighbors to flee.

The nuthatches scurried for safety, the wrens fluttered wildly about and I sensed from this scene of excitement it wasn't quite safe to be out.

The thrushes with fear were a-quiver!

Where once had tranquility been Now a threat of impending disaster had suddenly altered the scene.

I put down the book I was reading and went in the garden to see the cause of so noisy a clamor and just what the danger could be.

Thought I, "Is it boy with a rifle, or cat that has ventured to prow!" But low on a tree branch, a blinking and staring at me was an owl!

It was plain he was merely a fledgling and I doubt that he knew as he gazed.

Why his coming to rest in that maple such a terrible clamor had raised.

But I shooed him away from my garden, and thought as that owl disappeared.

Wherever you go you'll be hated; wherever you go you'll be feared.

Weekly Health Talk

THERAPEUTIC LAMPS

"Hippocrates, in 510 B. C. as the original expounder of natural cures for diseases, did not overlook the value of fresh air and the sun. However, it was not until a comparatively few years ago that Rollier, a Swiss surgeon sent countless human beings out into a zero atmosphere declaring, 'The cold will not harm, and the sun will cure.' To the astonishment of skeptics, this Spartan treatment achieved spectacular results with young bodies racked with tuberculosis. And in this way, much of the present enthusiasm for the sun and the therapeutic lamp got its start. However, enthusiasts can be overdone, and this one is by no means an exception," states Dr. Edith MacBride-Dexter, state secretary of health.

"In spite of repeated warnings by physicians and public health officials, literally thousands of persons under the vacation spell will overexpose their bodies to the sun and suffer painfully in consequence.

Others on the sound theory that the sun's rays are beneficial, will overexpose, again with untoward results. And there is still another large group who, being impressed with the healing advantages of light rays, become too devoted to the therapeutic lamp.

"Light treatments undoubtedly have great value, including those taken in the home. Nevertheless, it is one thing to use this therapeutic agent under professional supervision and quite another one to 'go it alone.' As with the sun, not only the benefits of the ray lamp must be appreciated, but its limitations as well.

There are many cases on record where the home prescribed and non-professionally directed use of the various ray treatment methods have dangerously affected eyes. Again, persons who do not tan easily are very poor subjects. Low blood pressure individuals also often suffer unfortunate reactions to the rays.

And in early cases of tuberculosis it is often contra-indicated.

"It follows, that no matter how valuable both the sun and artificial rays may be, control and knowledge are essential. This means that the wise person who employs either the sun or the lamp as a therapeutic measure will only do so under professional advice and supervision. Decidedly, it does not pay to take chances."

Traveling with children is an ordeal and an exhausting experience for the mother, who must keep a constant vigil over her charges.

Every one appreciates this difficulty and is sympathetic toward not only the mother but also her children who are soon bored by scenery, no matter how beautiful, and are "raring to go" where there is no place to go except up and down the narrow aisles of the train.

No one expects youngsters to be as contented and as understanding of the rules of train behavior as are their elders. They cannot be expected to sit quietly in their seats with nothing to do and nothing to amuse them during a long and tiresome journey.

But neither should they be permitted to run about the train boisterously playing games which will annoy other passengers.

Before you go vacationing, see to it that your children take along a sufficient number of interests to keep them amused and busy during your travels. Dolls and picture books for the tiny tots, story books and games for those of further development will help considerably toward giving them, as well as you and your fellow-passengers a pleasant journey.

The World At A Glance

Income Versus Outgo. Wide Disparity Shown. Issue Before The People.

Central Press New York Bureau 235 East 45th Street

By LESLIE RICHEL Central Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, August 20.—This part of our era may be known as the Period of the Failure of High Prices.

Hitherto, high prices have been synonymous with "prosperity". Today we have the return of high prices—in the stock market, for commodities, for nearly everything except land, and land, once it is foreclosed into fewer hands, may follow.

And, today, except for the privileged few, there is neither prosperity nor security.

The many still are bruised and walking in darkness.

If President Roosevelt faces larger and larger oppositionistic votes at the polls it will not be because he desires an amendment to the constitution or because he taxes wealth or even the man of intermediate means, but because the disparity between income and outgo grows worse and worse.

Cast aside all other issues—since there is no deeply emotional issue in the United States—and you will come closest to the truth.

This writer has talked to scores of persons in all walks of life, and the question of income and outgo is by far the most important.

The counter cries of propagandists and politicians are only faintly observed.

Neither Republicans nor Democrats—nor Progressives, either, for that matter, offer any solution of the price problem.

The Republicans are as eager as the Democrats to bring prosperity by price rises, no matter by what procedure. And they both went ahead no matter by what procedure.

And, now, even prior to the national election, President Roosevelt will be faced with the question: "What shall we do economically now?"

MANY REMAIN UNPRODUCTIVE

Surely, whether a man be a tory or radical, capitalist or worker, he can see that when a fifth of a population remains unproductive (it is estimated that one-fifth of the population is on the dole, they are heading toward co-operative endeavors, which may have to be resorted to in the end to prevent a world collapse to the dregs. And thoughtful men fear this will not occur calmly. They pray for sincere, far-seeing, brave, patient, kind leadership.

There may be years of struggle ahead—struggle even for the right of existence as well as for intelligent government.

WHAT HAVE WE?

If the Republicans or the Democrats—the conservative groupings are included—were accused of leading toward a socialistic nation, they would demand retraction. Yet, by their efforts to maintain the price structure above the world supply and demand figure while the dole, they are heading toward co-operative endeavors, which may have to be resorted to in the end to prevent a world collapse to the dregs. And thoughtful men fear this will not occur calmly. They pray for sincere, far-seeing, brave, patient, kind leadership.

There may be years of struggle ahead—struggle even for the right of existence as well as for intelligent government.

On Court House Hill

Ray H. Aylesworth, receiver for the Pittsburgh Company, presented a petition to court for the private sale of properties in Ellwood City to C. J. Haswell and R. M. Kline. A hearing will be held September 3rd.

Twenty-five instruments of all kinds were entered at the register and recorder's office during the past week. Of this number 16 were deeds and 5 were mortgages. Two of the mortgages were to individuals and three to building and loans.

In the equity suit of The First National Bank of New Wilmington against Carrie D. Getty, executrix of the late H. T. Getty, and the Lawrence Savings and Trust Company, guardian of minor children of Mr. and Mrs. Getty, the court has fixed August 26 as a time for hearing.

Now that the drawing for places on the ballot have been held, County Commissioners' Clerk, William A. Eakin, will begin the work on the preparation of the county, city, borough and township ballots. As there will be over six hundred names on the ballots, this will mean considerable work. The longest list of candidates will be under the head of "county commissioner."

The B. F. Goodrich Company of Akron, O., has filed a suit at the prothonotary's office against the Patton-Campbell Motor Company of Ellwood City, to recover a balance of $631.92, alleged to be due on a bill for supplies. Defendants will file their answer later.

Under the new state personal tax law passed by the recent legislature taxpayers are expected to report all mortgages, articles of agreements and other evidences of debt filed at the register and recorder's office, and all notes and judgments filed in the prothonotary's office. Executors and administrators of estates, at the time of filing their inventory and appraisal at the register and recorder's office for inheritance tax purposes, are expected to report all items liable for the new personal tax. A severe penalty is attached to making a false return. Under the new law the state gets one mill and the county four mills of the personal property tax. Heretofore the county got four mills. The state is preparing to check up on all personal property returns, and expects to uncover a lot of items that have not heretofore been taxed. The tax covers bonds and stocks, as well as mortgages and judgments.

Testimony to fix the amount of a deficiency judgment was taken before Judge James A. Chambers in the case of James A. McLaughry and R. C. Kerr, trustees under the will of the late George Wright against the late J. A. Wright and Tressa Wright. The Wright property erty on Englewood avenue was sold at Sheriff sale, but did not bring enough to cover the mortgage. The hearing was for the purpose of establishing a fair market value for the property, in order that the amount of the deficiency judgment might be determined. Under the old law when a property was sold on a bond and mortgage and did not bring enough to cover the mortgage, the bond held against any other property which the owner of the property sold might own, and the full amount of the mortgage could be obtained if the property was worth it. Under the new deficiency judgment act only a specified amount can be filed against other property which the owner of the property sold might own. Testimony is taken before court as to the fair value of the property covered by the mortgage and the court determines the amount of the deficiency judgment.

Dividends Are Boosted Today

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, August 20.—A substantial increase in common dividends was voted today by directors of E. I. DuPont de Nemours & Co.

The regular quarterly rate was increased to 90 cents a share from 85 cents previously, placing common stock on a $3.60 annual basis. An extra disbursement of 35 cents a share was also declared. Both are payable September 14 to stock of record August 28.

In June, 1934, the annual rate was increased to $2.60 from $2.00. Total payments last year, including extras, amounted to $3.10, while in 1933 and 1932 the aggregate was $2.75. Previous to that the common stock had been on a $4.00 basis.

Today's increase reflected the additional income received from the recent action by General Motors, which placed its common stock on a $2 annual basis and voted a 25 cent extra payment. Du Pont holds approximately 10,000,000 shares of General Motors stock.

Jones Estimates Works To Start Within 30 Days

By J. WILLIAM THEIS
International News Service Staff Correspondent

HARRISBURG, Aug. 20.—Works progress jobs for an estimated 200,000 persons—nearly one-half the state's total of relief families—were promised "within 30 days" by WAP Administrator Edward N. Jones today.

Some of the jobs will be ready this week, Jones said, indicating an end to climbing relief rolls which resulted from delays in the state WPA program after the demise of LWD.

Robert L. Johnson, state relief administrator, counted an addition of 43,005 persons to the commonwealth's relief population during the week ending August 10. The increase, the second consecutive weekly rise, was attributed to released work relief employees returning to the roster of those on direct relief.

"Actual work on the state's first works progress administration projects will start this week," Jones declared.

"Furthermore," the administrator added, "I can say positively that work on practically every one of the 2,248 projects which have passed over my desk will be under way within 30 days."

Projects approved here so far, Jones said, will provide employment for 74,800 persons for an entire year.

"Inasmuch as the average time required to complete an average works progress administration project is but three months," he explained, "this means that as soon as these projects are approved at Washington, we can immediately employ from three to four times the number represented by this man-year figure of 74,800, or approximately 200,000 men and women now on direct relief."

An English diary of the time of the American Revolution tells how the "king bathed with great success; a machine follows the royal one into the sea filled with fiddlers who play 'God save the king' as his majesty takes his plunge."

HISTORICAL DAY RECALLED

Editor, The News:

I saw in The News of August 15 where Mr. Clark Kinnaird, who conducts your "Today is the Day" column, states that Captain Lawrence called "Don't give up the ship" as he died on the deck of his command, the "Chesapeake." According to the reliable history, he did not die on the deck of his command.

Referring to the history at this point, it points out that the position of the ships being favorable, Captain Brooke at the head of his mariners boarded the Chesapeake, when every officer who could take command was killed or wounded. Resistance ceased and the American flag was struck by the enemy, Captain Lawrence, when carried below, was asked if the colors should be struck. "No," he firmly replied, "they shall wave while I live."

When the fate of the ship was decided, his proud spirit was broken, he became delirious from an excess of mental and bodily suffering, and whenever able to speak, he would exclaim, "Don't give up the ship." And he uttered but few other words during the four days that he survived his defeat.

Yours respectfully,
WILBERT C. GIBB,
Volant.

Lawrence County Home Model In Keystone State

Improvements Completed
This Summer Place It In First Ranks

INMATES NUMBER 142,
114 MEN, 28 WOMEN

Cost Of Operation Materially Reduced By Garden
And Fruit Crops

Of the hundreds of people who pass the County Home on the Ellwood road daily, few ever stop to make a closer inspection than the perspective seen from the highway. They admire the grassy lawn, the stately looking brick buildings, the winding drives, the pretty shrubbery, the fruit trees and berry patches, and let it go with the comment that "it's a nice place."

Perhaps they see the male inmates, sitting contentedly by the roadside, parked on chairs or benches, or sprawled out under the shade trees. Seldom are women seen on the lawn. They prefer to stay inside in their cozy rooms, the big sitting rooms or on the cheery sun porches. Those who would get a true picture of the County Home should stop long enough to make a tour of inspection. It would open their eyes to the really wonderful place that Lawrence county has provided for her unfortunate.

142 Guests
Such a visit was made by a News reporter Monday afternoon. He was met at the door by Mrs. Perry Snyder, the genial matron, whose business it is to look after the comfort and welfare of the inmates. Mrs. Snyder said that her family now consists of 142 persons, 114 male and 28 female. This is a decrease from last winter when there were 177.

Superintendent Perry Snyder was called and with Mr. and Mrs. Snyder the reporter made a tour of inspection. One of the first things to attract the reporter's attention was the scrupulous cleanliness of the place. It was evidenced in the halls, corridors, sitting rooms, bedrooms, dining rooms, bath rooms and laundry. The floors, walls and windows were all models of the housekeeping art. No home could be any brighter or neater.

Sleeping rooms, large and well ventilated, are furnished with single beds on which coverings are spotlessly white. Most of the women inmates are well advanced in years. Few are able to do any work. On Monday afternoon some were enjoying a nap, others were bedfast because of infirmities. The majority were sitting around in comfortable rockers, reading or chatting.

Some of the men were in their rooms but the majority were in the large assembly room, sitting around playing games and talking. Outside on the lawn they were lying under shade trees. Time, 3:30 p. m.

Good Kitchen
Mrs. Snyder personally looks after the culinary department and personally does much of the work. The kitchen is well equipped with huge ranges and modern electrical appliances. Mr. Snyder had just brought in six bushels of roasting ears for supper. Mrs. Snyder said she would cut off about a gallon of corn and prepare it for the old people who can't eat corn from the cob.

It takes about one and one-half bushels of potatoes for a meal. Some ninety loaves of bread a day, ten gallons of milk in addition to canned milk for coffee. Meat is furnished for at least one meal a day. Vegetables of all kinds come in fresh from the garden, also berries and fruits.

More is raised than is necessary for present needs, and it is canned. Mrs. Snyder has hundreds of jars of canned vegetables and fruits in the cellar.

The men and women eat in separate dining rooms. Meals are served in rooms to those who are unable to come to the tables.

Another interesting place is the laundry. It is equipped with all labor saving devices and is in operation every day. All washable bedding and clothing of all kinds is kept neat and clean.

The Garden
Outside Superintendent Perry Snyder takes particular pride in his gardening. He has about four acres in potatoes, and expects to raise as many, 700 bushels, as he did last year. He has 4500 heads of cabbage, a big patch of tomatoes, onions, radishes, and all other kinds of vegetables. In the fruit line there are grapes, raspberries, peaches, plums, pears and apples. Several baskets of peaches were picked yesterday. There are plenty of blackberries for present needs and for canning.

Although very few of the men at the home are able to work Mr. Snyder has been able to get along without any outside help. The men who are able, seem willing enough to assist with the gardening. The home now has all the land that could be worked with inmates. Any more would mean the hiring of a farm superintendent and help. There has been some agitation for a larger farm, but it is a serious question if it could be made to pay. In fact those who have given the matter much study are of the opinion that it would not.

Spent $1,000
During the past year the county commissioners have been called upon to expend about $10,000 at the home. Part of this was due to the wearing out of boilers and machinery, and a large proportion to faulty construction of the buildings when erected. As has been previously outlined in The News, steam, gas, and other pipes were placed under concrete floors, with no way of getting at them. Electrolysis developed, with the result that the concrete floors had to be cut through, and the pipes removed and replaced. Action of electricity on the pipes had caused them to disintegrate so that they could be crushed in the hand.

In order that there be no trouble in the future the commissioners made passageways about two feet wide for the pipes. They are trussed up there are regular openings covered with steel plates where workmen can get in to make any repairs needed. While the job has been expensive, it is now permanent and will never give any more trouble.

The commissioners also had to replace the tubes and firebricks in three boilers, and have purchased a new one. Formerly all the hot water used in the laundry, kitchen and bath rooms had to be heated in the boilers used for heating the plant. The new boiler does this work at a substantial saving in fuel bills. The saving since the system was installed about five months ago has been between $300 and $400.

The wells, which were drilled deeper, are now supplying all the water needed to run the home, with a well in reserve. New pumps were installed which have resulted in a saving in electric bills. There has also been a saving in electric bills since the electrocution of the pipes was stopped. The June bill last year was $105.06. This year, $83.62. July bill last year, $96.85, this year, $79.

The home is today in first class condition in every way with little needed in the way of future expense for many years. It is one of the model homes of Pennsylvania.

New Coal Bill Enters Senate

Bitter Fight Awaits Guffey
Coal Bill In Senate Is Belief Of Leaders

By EDWARD B. LOCKETT
International News Service Staff
Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—Bringing a new threat of adjournment delay, the Guffey-Snyder coal bill fight today moved into the senate. The tardiness of its arrival, coupled with its emergency nature in view of strike probabilities failing enactment, conspired for speed, but the battle for enactment was far from won. Despite President Roosevelt's imperative demand for the legislation his senate leaders described the bill as "a tough one."

Settling up a so-called "little NRA" for the bituminous coal industry as it does, the Guffey-Snyder bill revived all the old bugaboos of the now defunct recovery unit, and presented a few new ones on its own. In the house, the bill won its way to passage by 195 to 168 vote, but there were gaping blanks of opposition in some quarters normally to be found in support of Mr. Roosevelt.

Southerners Afraid
For instance, eight Southern states with a house voting power of 74 ballots gave the coal bill but 22 aye ballots when the roll was called. Senators from those states were just as much opposed to the bill as their house colleagues. Southern operators apparently were afraid the legislation would destroy their existing preferential wage scales, and they have communicated those fears to members of congress in no uncertain terms.

Completely aside from the business objections to the legislation, the "constitutional" block in the senate, shied away from the bill, its members predicted dire results from the precedent which would be set by the measure.

Injured In Fall

City Detective Cy Horner, veteran police officer of the city, fell from the second to the first story yesterday afternoon at the city annex. Horner was descending the stairway from the detectives room to the sergeant's office on the first floor. The heel of one of his shoes caught in some way and he fell head foremost down the stairs. The wound was taken to his home, where he is reported as resting as comfortably as can be expected.

Some time ago Horner was in an automobile accident at the intersection of South and South Jefferson street and was injured so badly he could not work for some time.

Brainless Infant Born In New York

(International News Service)
NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—The scientific theory that holds the brain to be seat of all human intelligence and mental processes faced drastic revision today, medical men admitted, as a result of the birth of a "brainless" infant at St. Vincent's hospital July 21.

The child lived for 27 days, dying last Saturday, apparently of pneumonia, and it was not until a routine autopsy was performed that it was learned the child differed from other infants, it was revealed today.

Instead of a normal brain there was found in the infant's cranium only 10 ounces of liquid.

Attending physicians declared the child cried, slept, ate and moved its legs and arms normally during its brief lifetime and reacted to pain.

Medical science has long held that pain and material sensation of all type was telegraphed to the brain by means of nerve impulses, but obviously this belief must undergo drastic revision if it is found that sensation can be recognized without a brain.

It is planned to preserve the body at the hospital for future study.

The names of the parents of the infant have been withheld.

ROOSEVELT URGES ADJOURNMENT IN FIVE DAYS

Problems Beset President From Many Sections

Housewives Protest Price Of Meat, New England Asails Processing Tax

RADIO ADDRESS SATURDAY NIGHT

By GEORGE DURNON
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—Troublesome political problems on widely separated fronts combined to harass President Roosevelt today as he urged Congress on to adjournment in five days and simultaneously gave thought to a Saturday night radio broadcast that will have the effect of opening his campaign for re-election.

From Detroit, a delegation of housewives has invaded Washington to protest the high price of meat and charge it is due to the AAA processing tax and profiteering by the meat packers.

Processing Tax
New England also is assailing the processing tax, claiming it is shutting down their mills. Rhode Island recently won surprisingly Republican in a test vote with this as one of the big issues.

Inversely, down south they are clamoring for a continuance of the 12-cent government loan on cotton. Secretary of Agriculture Wallace and AAA Administrator Chester C. Davis have protested such action would open the door to demands for like treatment from growers of their commodities.

Discordant elements in New York City and elsewhere have attempted to stir up work-relief strikes against the "security wage" being paid by the works progress administration. Western states, eager to start reclamation, irrigation, flood control and power projects with work-relief money are chafing under the limitation of $1.140 per man for WPA enterprises, this amount to include cost of materials, etc., as well as wages.

The U. S. Chamber of Commerce and big business generally are screaming defiance at the administration because of the wealth-sharing tax bill now in final stages of congressional enactment.

Certain groups among the coal operators stand ready to challenge constitutionality of the Guffey coal bill immediately if it becomes law.

Public Utilities
The public utilities interests are entrenched for a finish fight if a bill vitally affecting holding companies finally passes.

All of these problems and issues would furnish President Roosevelt with material for the radio speech he is going to direct to the young Democrats, assembled in Milwaukee, next Saturday evening.

Intimates of the chief executive, however, predicted that he will confine himself to a general review of the reform legislation that has been enacted to date under his administration without going too deeply into the controversial political aspects. He is expected further to enlighten young voters on the part they should play in next year's campaign.

Today
A Rogers Highway.
Borah For 1936.
City On A Gold Mine.
Baby With No Brains.
By ARTHUR BRISBANE

FROM TULSA, Oklahoma, the state in which Will Rogers was born, J. D. Underwood telegraphs suggesting as "the highest tribute and a lasting memorial to Will Rogers," that Highway 66, which runs from Rogers new home in California to his old home at Claremore, Okla., be extended on to New York, and the whole road named "Will Rogers Highway."

If every American highway, with friends of Will Rogers living on both sides from one end to the other, were named for him, there would be many "Will Rogers" highways.

YOU READ "Borah prepares to enter 1936 presidential race if his Republican boom grows," and ask yourself what has become of the YOUNG Republicans? Senator Borah is in the prime of intellectual power, one that many intelligent Americans would select, if a change were to come in 1936. A plain American, of the vanishing kind, he believes that the people could rule, if they had a chance, and attaches more importance to the American man than to the American dollar.

Under ordinary circumstances that would prevent his nomination by the corporation-Republican party.

But these are not ordinary circumstances.

ther increase in Russia's gold production, already more than three times as great as that of the United States, may be expected.

American engineers could show them how to take out the gold, without knocking down the city.

THOSE THAT believe in the wickedness of Russia may ask: "Why does Providence allow such wicked people to find so much gold?"

One answer is "the quickest way to make them stop their wickedness is to make them rich, and gold would do that." Gold might not change the existing government of Russia, but another generation will see another kind of government, and ownership of such a hundred gold, as we possess, might make that next Russian government consider Lenin and Stalin "old fashioned."

Providence work mysteriously.

PHYSICIANS AT St. Vincent's Hospital, in New York, report the extraordinary case of a baby, that lived for 27 days, appearing almost normal, but possessing no brain.

Disgruntled "best minds" will tell you there are "babies" in Washington, some of them full-fledged professors, that have lived longer than 27 days, "without any brain."

JUDGE OTIS, of the Federal District Court of Western Missouri, compelled by law to sell at auction homes and land of farmers that could not pay their debts, not to be intimidated by demonstrations, will speak in public to farmers and others.

This shows the right spirit. A judge is chosen to apply the law, until the people, with their ballots change it.

NEVERTHELESS, HAVING the roof sold over your head, and your farm under your feet, after you have spent your life working to realize that he has only succeeded in building up railroads, commission merchants, long strings of middlemen, and banks, the farmer is puzzled. He could hardly be expected to have a really submissive, friendly feeling when business has like gentlemen with pencils and pads of paper arrive, saying: "The time has come. Get out." It seems too much like the experience of the gentleman sitting in a condemned cell.

CHIEF WALTER KUMALO, head of the Amakolwa tribe, offers to take a crowd of Zulus to help Ethiopia beat Mussolini. Too bad that Walter, who may call himself chief of the tribe of Amakolwa, only by the grace of Britain was not around when the pious English took Zululand from his ancestors, and sent the great Zulu King, Cetewayo, to captivity.

Curious, by the way, that the British see no resemblance between Italy taking Ethiopia, because Italy wants Ethiopia and England formerly taking Zululand, because England wanted Zululand.

MUSSOLINI ASKS the French to observe the old, unchangeable tribes of Ethiopia have invaded French Somaliland, killing 100 French subjects. France will pay no attention.

When you want war, it is enough for the enemy to kill a guinea pig on your land. When you don't want war, killing a hundred men means little. In this instance, France will feel like the Negro gentleman who refrained from entering the war "to make the world safe for democracy." He said: "The German Kaiser never does nothing to me, and if he did, I forgive him."

WITH the gathering of scientists from thirty nations in Moscow, Russian professors have demonstrated the fact that Sovietism has intelligence enough to feed and encourage science, as it does literature. The richest man in Russia is Gorky, the writer. Visiting scientists from the United States and other civilized countries, compliment Russia on her admirable laboratories. Walter Durrant, who writes from Moscow, thinks some undeserved emphasis has been put on the achievements of modern Russian science. He says, while "Soviet interest in science is wholly true, a Russian engineer can run American engineers ragged in theoretical argument, but an American could make a train go while the Russian is making plans."

Cornplanter Indian Reservation Thrives In Warren County

In this peaceful valley in northeastern Warren County, lineal descendants of Cornplanter, Seneca chief and friend of the white man, till the fertile acres of the only Indian Reservation in Pennsylvania.

HARRISBURG, Aug. 19.—Towering peaks, mighty rivers and stately forests are well known to every motorist who has followed the great network of modern highways which crosses every corner of Pennsylvania. But few, indeed, are familiar with a site—unusual as it is attractive—suggested today by Warren Van Dyke, Secretary of Highways, as the high point of a vacation tour—the Cornplanter Indian Reservation in northeastern Warren County.

Here not far from the city of Warren on the upper reaches of the Allegheny River, lineal descendants of a great Seneca chief dwell in peaceful rural simplicity and till the broad acres passed down to them from sires who fought, in turn, for and against the white man as he pushed his frontier toward the Pacific. Gone are the featured war bonnets, the dangling scalp and other accoutrements of war, but even a brief visit will enable the traveler to note among the natives the bronzed skins and high cheek bones which mark the Red Man.

For nearly 150 years these Indians have lived in peace among the white men, adopting their customs in living and dress, and in many cases intermarrying. Their farms resemble those of their Caucasian neighbors and their children are schooled and trained as other youngsters of the section.

Cornplanter, the Seneca chief for whom the settlement is named, was born about 1736 at Ganawagus, on the Genesee River in New York, the son of a white trader named John O'Bail and a full-blooded Seneca woman. Some authorities believe his father to have been an Englishman, others that Dutch blood coursed his veins. In any event his peculiar name may be traced to the Indian version which was Garganwahgah, meaning "the Planter."

In an old letter, the lad tells of his boyhood during which he "played with the butterfly, the grasshopper, and the frogs," and later noted the peculiar color of his skin, a fact which led to discovery that his father was a white man. The father, casting his lot with his own people, lived in Albany and Cornplanter writes of a visit there during which the father was hospitable in a general way but "gave neither kettle nor gun" for the journey home.

Shortly thereafter the young chief led the Senecas in raids on white settlements in the Schoharie and Mohawk Valleys. On one of these forays the youth captured his father along with other prisoners, but, in a touching speech spared his life, offering his choice of sanctuary with the Indians or an escort back to his own people. The father chose the latter and this is the last recorded reference to his father.

Despite the fact that Cornplanter had been a bitter enemy of the colonists in the days of the Revolution—many historians claiming that he fought with the French against Braddock in 1755—he became a firm friend of the new Republic after peace had been made. He went to Fort Stanwix, New York, in 1784 as a representative of the Six Nations in their treaty with the "Thirteen Fires" as the Indians termed the new Union. Cornplanter, although friendly, always feared trickery in dealings with the white man. He once said that General William Irvine, who for several years subsequent to 1792, was engaged in superintending the survey of lands north northwest of the Allegheny, was one of the few white men who spoke the truth.

When General Anthony Wayne was drilling his Legion of the United States at the place since known as Legionville, near Pittsburgh preparing for a campaign against troublesome Western Indians, Cornplanter visited him and later made an unsuccessful trip among these nations in the interests of peace. During the War of 1812 he offered 200 Seneca warriors for service against the British, an offer which was refused although many Senecas including his son, Major Henry O'Bail and a half-brother, Half Town, served gallantly on the Niagara frontier.

In 1830 when the steamboat "Allegheny" made her third trip up the river of the same name she stopped off at the Indian Village where a deputation waited upon the aged chief and invited him aboard this new and, to him, wonderful craft. Accompanied by a son, Charles, then 60 years of age, and a son-in-law, Cornplanter inspected the boat and rode six miles up river returning in his own canoe.

The famous chief died in 1836 at Cornplanter Town in this settlement on the banks of his beloved Allegheny, the last great Indian Chief in Pennsylvania. His days were marked with a gallant leadership, an earnest desire to inculcate temperance into the Indian mind and an almost reverential respect for President Washington and the Governors of Pennsylvania. It was his last wish that his grave remain unmarked, but in 1866 the State of Pennsylvania, feeling that honor should be paid his memory, erected a monument with the following inscription:

Gyant-wa-chio, the Cornplanter John O'Bail, alias Cornplanter died

A. Cornplanter Town, Feb. 18, A. D. 1836 aged about 100 years

Thus near this monument and on the tract of 1500 acres which he acquired in 1791 on the west bank of the Allegheny and adjacent islands, descendants of his followers still dwell in the only Indian Reservation within the borders of the State.

Warren, McKean, Elk and Cameron Counties were all prominent in Indian activities of the early days, all having been shaped from lands ceded to Pennsylvania under the treaty of 1764 by the Six Indian Nations. Within a year thousands of acres had been sold by lottery. In McKean County the first purchase was made by John Keating who paid $80,000 for 300,000 acres. Elk County dates from 1843 when it was carved out of a part of McKean County and portions of Jefferson and Clearfield Counties. Cameron County was founded in 1860 and so named in honor of Simon Cameron. Federal Routes 6, 120 and 219 traverse this section and motorists will find here a delightful area in which to spend a summer holiday. Complete information on routes to this and other sections of the State may be had without cost by addressing the Bureau of Publicity and Information, Room 312, Department of Highways, Harrisburg.

(International News Service)

PARIS, Aug. 20.—Nicholas Politis of Greece, former president of the League of Nations Council, was designated today as super-arbitrator in the Italo-Ethiopian dispute, but his formal appointment was deferred because of Italian objections. Despite a protest from the Ethiopians against restricting future deliberations of the commission to the Wal Wal incident, the members decided to resume discussions where they were dropped on July 9.

All of the fighters have been well matched and it promises to be a rip snorting good time next Monday night. A huge following from this city will take in the fights. All of the local entries are popular and rated as worthy opponents in this district.

Senate-House Agree On Tax Legislation

Includes Graduate Corporation Income Tax—Capital Stock Tax

$250,000,000

ESTIMATED TOTAL

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—A complete agreement on the new tax bill was reached today by senate-house conference committee. The bill is estimated to raise $250,000,000 annually.

The agreement was effected by compromises in which both senate and house yielded on phases of the tax controversy.

The Borah amendment, which prohibited future issuance of federal tax exempt securities, and the McCarran amendment repealing the 50 cent silver tax and nationalization, both were thrown out by the conference committee.

The bill as agreed upon provides:

1. A graduated corporation income tax of 12 1/2 per cent on corporate income up to $2,000; 13 per cent, $2,000 to $15,000; 14 per cent, $15,000 and $40,000; over $40,000, 15 per cent.

The estimated yield of this tax is $35,000,000.

2. Capital stock tax of $140 per $1,000. The rate now is $1. The senate bill made it $150. Estimated yield $44,000,000.

3. Excess profits tax of six per cent on profits from 10 to 15 per cent, and 12 per cent on profits above 15 per cent. The senate rates were accepted. Estimated yield $10,000,000.

4. Individual income surtaxes increased on incomes from $50,000 up, beginning at 31 per cent and rising to 75 per cent. House rates were accepted. Estimated yield $45,000,000.

5. Inheritance taxes omitted from bill. Senate provisions increasing present estate taxes were accepted. Graduated from two per cent on first $5,000 to 70 per cent on over $50,000 with $40,000 exemption.

6. Gift taxes fixed at three-fourths of estate taxes ranging from one and one half per cent to 5 1/2 per cent. Estimated combined yield, estate and gift taxes, $102,000,000 a year.

7. Inter-corporate dividends. Senate provision was modified to allow 90 per cent credit, making the tax on inter-corporate dividends about 1 1/2 per cent, estimated yield $29,000,000.

8. Senate rates on personal holding companies accepted.

Senator Harrison (D) of Mississippi, chairman of the conference, who announced the agreement, said the bill was estimated to raise $250,000,000 a year, but that $15,000,000 would be lost by the provision permitting corporations to deduct up to 15 per cent of their net income for charitable gifts.

Revises Program

The bill, as agreed upon, sharply revises the program laid down in the president's so-called share the wealth message.

The president was successful in adoption of the principle of the graduated corporation tax, called "a tax on bigness," but the rates are less than he recommended.

The president was defeated on his recommendation that inheritance taxes be levied in addition to the present estate taxes. However, the estate taxes were increased to a point where some rates are said by experts to be the highest in the world.

The conferees also abided by the administration's wishes in knocking out both the Borah and McCarran amendments. The increase in the capital stock tax and the excess profits taxes were approved without any administration recommendations.

While the president recommended that income surtaxes be boosted on incomes above $100,000 a year, the conference agreement goes down to incomes of $50,000.

This was done, it was explained, because little revenue could be obtained by boosting taxes on already highly taxed millionaires.

The tax bill passed by the house was estimated to raise a net amount of $255,000,000 while the net yield of the senate bill was estimated at $254,000,000.

The new taxes imposed on personal holding companies range from 20 to 60 per cent and are directed against the undistributed adjusted net income of the company.

The conference report will be presented in the house for action first, but the present plan of leaders called for delay until an adjournment date was certain.

Sleeping Man Gets Another In "Jam"

(International News Service)
PITTSBURGH, Aug. 20.—Lester Cain, 33, negro, received the title Monday of the worlds sleepiest man. Cain just couldn't go any farther and dropped off to sleep on the cement driveway of a gasoline station here. William Reckoner, gasoline truck driver, wanted to get in the driveway but Cain couldn't be disturbed. First Reckoner shook the sleeping one, then he kicked him, then he pulled out a revolver and shot skyward three times. It all sounded like Gabriel's horn to Cain, as he slept on.

Police finally came and arrested both of them; Reckoner for violating the firearms act, and Cain as a witness.

Narcotic Ring Held By Police In Washington, D. C.

(International News Service)
WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—Seizure of a narcotic ring in the very shadow of the national capitol by federal narcotic agents Monday led U. S. Commissioner of Narcotics H. J. Anslinger, to urge nation-wide enactment of uniform state laws on "dope" control.

Although capture of the ring broke up extensive peddling of narcotics here, Anslinger emphasized the temporary nature of the victory when local courts imposed only 30 day sentences in some instances, and not more than 90 days to others, in sentencing the gang. Lack of strong laws was blamed by the government.

He explained that while 34 states and Hawaii, have laws controlling the marijuana traffic, the drug in question these are not uniform. The federal government is powerless to check the traffic in this drug because it is a state problem.

Congressmen Not Talkative

(International News Service)
WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—Despite any impressions to the contrary, Congress has not talked as much as usual this session.

"The average length of the Congressional Record is less than usual, although of course the session is extremely long and this makes for bulk," explained Rep. Lambeth (D) of North Carolina, chairman of the joint printing committee.

The reason is simple. It isn't a campaign year, he says.

Who Pays Advertising Costs?

Not The Consumer, Says Agency Executive's Wife, Who Proves It By Ice Box Contents

By Z. L. POTTER
Executive Vice President, Erwin, Wasey & Co.

Mrs. Reginald Manyard stood large and imposing before the Wednesday meeting of the Housewives Protective League. "Advertising," she said, "is a waste, adding no serviceable quality to goods, but increasing their cost. Millions are squandered on it every year and we consumers pay the bill."

Mrs. Camelia White, whose husband was in advertising, heard the charge in silence but that night she asked Tom White about it.

"Tell me what you do," said Tom. "Go look in her pantry and medicine closet. Find out about the last clothes she bought." And he gave her his ideas about advertising.

The next day Mrs. White called on Mrs. Manyard. "What a lovely dress," she said. "Where did you get it?"

"At Carrol's," said Mrs. Manyard, mentioning the principal department store of the city. "They advertised specials last week and had some of the most stunning gowns at the lowest prices I've seen for such quality."

"Advertised?" inquired Mrs. White. "I thought it was a waste." "Well, it is," retorted Mrs. Manyard, "but one can't help seeing things that appear in the paper."

"Why didn't you go to Blank's Specialty Shop?"

"The prices are so high," said Mrs. Manyard.

"But they don't advertise," put in Mrs. White. "Why don't they sell for less?"

"Sill, of course, big stores with lots of customers can undersell small stores. They can buy to better advantage."

"But how did they get big? How do they stay big? Isn't advertising the answer?" inquired Camelia White politely.

"Well, maybe—but I meant national advertising of products like coffee, evaporated milk, cigarettes, automobiles, radios, and such things."

"I see you have an Atco radio," said Mrs. White. "Tom tells me they spend more than twice as much as any other radio manufacturer for advertising. Knowing you were paying for all that advertising why did you buy an Atco?"

"We looked at several makes, but the Atco appealed to us," said Mrs. Manyard.

"Were the others priced lower?" asked Mrs. White.

"No, I suppose Atco makes 'so many radios they can equal other prices," replied Mrs. Manyard. "Tom says," continued Mrs. White, "that Atco was the first moderately priced radio and that they set up low prices while they were advertising most heavily."

"He says, too, that in America we've nationalized our markets so people living in Portland, Oregon and Portland, Maine—at opposite sides of the continent—from morning 'til night use the same brands of things. National advertising has captured these distant markets for them. And because they produce in such enormous quantities they sell for less. Advertising," he says, "has cut costs of most things and saved us all money. But let's look at your new refrigerator."

"Isn't it lovely," Mrs. Manyard beamed.

"Yes, I knew all about its virtues. I've seen it in the ads," said Mrs. White. "But look what an attractive pantry—Campbell's Soup, Carnation Milk, Swansdown Flour, Libby's Pineapple Juice, Wesson Oil, Del Maiz Niblets, Heinz Baked Beans—you surely stick to known brands."

"Well, you know what you're getting for your money," Mrs. Manyard agreed.

"But prices?" said Mrs. White. "Think of the advertising tax on the consumer. How much more they must have cost you."

"Don't be silly, Camelia," replied Mrs. Manyard. "I want dependable goods and am willing to pay the cost."

"But did they cost extra?" Mrs. White asked.

"Well, maybe not."

"Then maybe by making stores and manufacturers big and enabling them to save through quantity handling advertising doesn't cost us consumers money. Maybe it saves us money."

"Possibly," Mrs. Manyard admitted.

Big Cities Are Bidding Strong For Baer-Louis

New York, Chicago And Detroit Offer To Stage Joe Louis And Baer Fight

By HYPE IGGE
International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—The life of a big-time promoter, a second Tex Rickard if you will, is not all roses and nectar.

Just now Mike-u-ell Jacobs, who put over the smash fistic hits between Joe Louis and Carnera and Lena's little lamb, King Levinsky, is being carried out to sea with offers for Baer and Louis. Every big town in the country wants the fray, especially Chicago, Detroit and, of course, our own New York.

Mike was going to fly to Chicago today for a final conference when he suddenly was commanded to appear before the New York board. The local commission has viewed these outside bids with no little alarm. "It's well, because they mean business out there in the middle west. For instance:

Chicago Wants Bout
From Chicago today came a hot bid. Their message to Jacobs was as follows:

"The Forty-Seventh Street business men's association, our big organization consisting of leading civic and business men in Chicago, are planning an extended campaign in the press to secure at minimum 75,000 reservations for the Louis and Baer fight to take place in Chicago. Please write us any suggestions."

The message was signed A. L. Wisler.

Leonard Hicks, the manager of the Morrison hotel in Chicago is in town, it being his second flight, to lay before Jacobs such guarantees as will be offered by the Chicago hotel men.

Jacobs Impressed
From Detroit came another bid, the automobile trade being behind the project. Fred Shader and Frank Colker, the latter associated in business with Edsel Ford, sent Jacobs this message:

"Have arranged with leaders in automotive manufacturing to sponsor a Louis and Baer fight if held in Detroit. Frank Colker will see you Wednesday to lay the proposition in your lap."

Mike spent the week-end with Max Baer at spoliator and came away greatly impressed with the fellow's workouts.

Municipal Golf Committee Meets Monday Evening

Affairs Of Course Are Shown In Excellent Condition Despite Handicaps

Members of the Municipal Golf Course committee met at the clubhouse last evening for their monthly meeting and were greatly encouraged by the reports submitted. Revenues were shown to be more than a thousand dollars ahead of last year at the end of July, in spite of the fact that there were two weeks of rainy weather during June and a similar period during the latter part of July, which retarded the play considerably. The members of the committee, after inspecting the course, reported that the course was never in better condition than at the present time. The rains of the summer have allowed the fairways to advance and there is now a thick, velvety covering the entire layout. Several of the greens have started to deteriorate and plans were outlined to re-seed them this fall with a fine quality of bent, which will make them perfect next spring. A number of other matters were discussed for the benefit of the course, which the members believe will meet with the approval of the golfing public.

Fishermen Allowed Fifty "Live Bait"

(International News Service)
HARRISBURG, Aug. 20.—Pennsylvania anglers learned with relief today that the State Fish Commission will not prosecute persons under the new law governing sale of live bait unless more than 50 bait are found in the individual's possession.

The water bait fish law was amended by the recent legislature, applies to "baitfish" or "fish bait" and describes these as being "all forms of minnows except fallfish, all forms of killifishes and stone catfish, crawfish, crane flies or waterworms, muscels and helgramites."

It was pointed out the legislature had no thought of depriving the average fisherman of his means of obtaining bait.

Persons possessing more than 50 live bait will be prosecuted under the amended law, which becomes effective September 1. The status of the commercial grower, the commission announced, remains the same.

Canzoneri Stops Klick In First

(International News Service)
SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 20.—Up until the opening round of last night's ten round bout between Tony Canzoneri, world's lightweight champion, and Frankie Klick, there were scores of Klick admirers who believed he could dethrone the New Yorker if given the chance.

They were sincere in their worship of Klick but the worship wobbled before the end of the first round. "Fight" was a good workout for the New Yorker. Tony tried all his punches—right crosses, left crosses, right and left uppercuts, jabs, counter jabs—and Klick absorbed them all.

It was a non-title fight, Klick being instructed to enter the ring overweight at 136. Canzoneri weighed 135.

FLEETWING DEWBERRY has 40 butternut trees on his 8-acre farm out in Wilmington Twp., and he is trying an experiment that may prove unusual—and may not. He has inserted a tube leading from a bottle of vanilla in each tree at the base and expects the said vanilla to be taken up by the tree and thus flavor the nuts. In addition he plans to pick these nuts on Sunday and will thus be able to sell butternut flavored Sundae. As he expects to gather only about 100 bushels, orders should be placed early, so when you drive in for gas, just say "nuts" and F. A. will know what you want. Stock Market
Breaks TodayLosses Run To More Than Four Points In Many Of Leading IssuesBy LESLIE GOULD
International News Service Financial Writer

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—The stock market broke again today after yesterday's shakeout, losses running to more than 4 points in American Telephone.

Liquidation was heavy and the ticker soon ran behind. Steadiness developed at the end of the first hour when support came into steels, coppers and aviation, but selling was resumed toward midday.

Utilities were weakest. Consolidated Gas lost over a point and low-priced issues, recent bull favorites, were under heavy pressure.

Union Pacific lost over a point more in the rails as the carrier group was hit again by the passing of the pension bill. N. Y. Central was heavily sold.

Sears Roebuck broke 2 points but steadied later. The whole farm group was under liquidation and losses were sizeable. Deere and Cast lost over a point each.

Chrysler lost a point in the motors. General Motors was reactionary but showed support on the way down. Auburn continued to display independent strength.

Westinghouse was a weak industrial. Allied Chemical fell over a point. DuPont was aided by its dividend boost.

Steels showed flashes of aggressive buying but were unable to stem the tide and went down as the session wore on.

A runup in Douglas lifted the aviation section for a while but here, too, the reaction in the general list proved too much.

Cotton slumped $1 a bale on indications that the government loans might be only 10 or 11 cents, instead of 12 cents, as predicted in the last week. Wheat rose a cent a bushel. Bonds were lower.

Special Election
Arranged In Ohio
To Fill Vacancy(International News Service)
COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 20.—Vacancy in congress caused by the death of the late Rep. Charles V. Truax (D) Bucyrus, will be filled at a "special election" held concurrently with the regular state-wide poll Nov. 3, 1936.

This today was the decision of Governor Davey, who further provided that candidates for the office will be nominated at a "special primary" held concurrently with the regular May 12 primary.

Thus the Roosevelt new deal was spared the danger of going on trial in politically important Ohio prior to the 1936 presidential election, and the cost of an extraordinary election, estimated at $500,000, was saved taxpayers.

Construction Costs
More Than Double(International News Service)
HARRISBURG, Aug. 20.—Estimated construction costs of 2,458 building projects approved during July was more than double the July, 1934 figure, the Department of Labor and Industry reported today. An increase in construction of one-family dwellings was particularly noted, the department reporting issuance of 207 permits for this type home last month as compared with 50 similar permits during July, 1934. During July 2,458 permits for an estimated expenditure of $3,875,522 were issued. In July, 1934, a total of 1,963 permits for work to cost $1,882,699 were issued.Free Harris On Own Recognizance

John Harris, colored, was set free on his own recognizance by police authorities after he had been arrested for cutting William Reed, also colored, of Moravia street. The latter was treated at the New Castle hospital. In connection with the arrest the proprietors of the Bay of Naples today said the cutting did not occur at the Bay of Naples but 500 feet away. The correction is made in justice to them. The police report gave the scene as the Bay of Naples, hence yesterday's report.

Democrats Are Meeting Today(International News Service)
HARRISBURG, Aug. 20.—Democratic county chairman and vice-chairmen met here today at the call of State Chairman David L. Lawrence to map the party's plans for an intensive campaign in favor of constitutional revision. Lawrence said he wanted the drive for revision carried into every section of the state and asked the chairmen to throw the weight of their local organizations behind the movement which is the number one objective of the Earle administration. Plans for the fall campaign also were discussed at the meeting.Riley And Evans
To Handle Game

Earl Riley and Bert Evans have been assigned to the Croton-Radiator game at Castle Beach, Wednesday night, by President Charles "Bugs" Walther. The game between these two teams the other night at Castle Beach ended in a tie and had to be re-played. Harley Brooks and Russ Kawa handled the first game. One of the two contesting teams asked for a change in umpires. The request has been granted.

No Adjournment
Before Saturday(International News Service)
WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—Congress cannot adjourn before Saturday, Speaker Byrns declared today, emerging from a brief conference with President Roosevelt at the white house.

There is a possibility of a compromise between senate and house conferees on the Public Utility Holding company bill, but the speaker indicated the prospects were none too good.

BUILD BRIDGE, THEN MOVE RIVER TO FLOW BELOW

One of the most unusual engineering feats ever accomplished nears completion at Omaha, Neb., where the bridge span, shown above, was deliberately erected over dry land, stretching from Nebraska to Iowa. With the bridge completed, the engineers began their trickiest work—moving the Missouri from its normal channel into a new channel that would carry the water under the new bridge. Engineers believe the new channel will be more permanent for the wandering Missouri river.

OUR YESTERDAYS
When Chapman Wrote His Poem,
"Out Where the West Begins"

Out Where the West Begins

Out where the handclasp is a little stronger,
Out where the smile dwells a little longer,
That's where the West begins.
Out where the sun is a little brighter,
Where the snow that falls is a little whiter,
Where the bonds of home are a wee bit tighter,
That's where the West begins.

Out where the skies are a trifle bluer,
Out where the smile dwells a little longer,
That's where the West begins.
Out where the sun is a little brighter,
Where the snow that falls is a little whiter,
Where the bonds of home are a wee bit tighter,
That's where the West begins.

Out where the world is in the making,
Where fewer hearts with despair are aching,
That's where the West begins.
Out where the sun is a little brighter,
Where the snow that falls is a little whiter,
Where the bonds of home are a wee bit tighter,
That's where the West begins.

Out where there's more of giving and less of buying,
And a man makes friends without half trying,
That's where the West begins.

—Arthur Chapman

Arthur Chapman, Mt. Holy Cross and copy of Chapman's poem.

IT IS SAID that nothing ever has been written that defines so well the spirit of the west as the popular poem, "Out Where the West Begins." It was written in 1917 by Arthur Chapman, writer and newspaperman, who then worked on a Denver newspaper. Now as much a symbol of the west as is Mt. Holy Cross, Pike's Peak and other landmarks, the poem was written on the occasion of a dispute over the real boundary of the west. Chapman, born in Rockford, Ill., in 1873, has produced other literary works, including "Cactus Center" and "Mystery Ranch", but none has been as popularly received as has his "Out Where the West Begins".

Blindness Can't Keep Boys from Being Boys

Although blind, these New York boys at "Camp Lighthouse," Waretown, N. J., find just methods of education and modern facilities. In races they run along lanes guided by as much fun in summer sports activities as their more fortunate brothers, thanks to new wires. They also swim, fish, and go rowing, as photos show. LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Two Cynics

At Least They Didn't Steal The Boulder

When a man bites a dog it's news, and when someone tries to steal a memorial plate from a stone on the public square of a modern city, that's also news!

Because an effort was made a night or so ago to make off with the bronze plate on the new Lincoln memorial stone on the diamond, the valuable plaque, carrying the Great Emancipator's Gettysburg address, was removed for safe keeping today.

Pedestrians walked by the diamond stone, missed the bronze plate and asked:

"Well, where's the plate gone to?" Councilman Joseph D. Alexander could tell them for he had it hurriedly removed after an out-of-town salesman rushed into police quarters to report that grown men were tinkering with and picking at it.

The monument was erected some time ago and so far as city authorities know there was never a previous attempt here to disturb any monument fixture.

City Forester Owen Penfield Fox will restore the memorial plate just as soon as a way is devised to guarantee its safety.

While the visiting salesman reported, breathlessly, that men were prying at it, city police found no one about the monument when they hastened down Washington street to the diamond.

For a time, at least, the Gettysburg speech marker will remain in the office of the director of public parks at City Hall.

Childish Tactics Of Congressmen Revealed By Recent Fight For Magnate

HOUSE WINS OUT IN MANEUVERING

Central Press Washington Bureau, 1900 S Street.

By CHARLES P. STEWART Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—How childish lawmakers sometimes can be was dramatically and amusingly demonstrated by the recent desperate fight between the senate and the house of representatives for possession of Howard C. Hopson, the public utilities magnate, especially of Associated Gas & Electric fame.

The row started over the clause, in the utilities bill, to abolish holding companies—the "death sentence" clause, as it was called.

The holding companies naturally opposed it furiously. The clause's advocates accused the companies' lobby of various unethical practices. The companies' spokesmen counter-charged that the administration, which favored the "death sentence", also was lobbying, and that its lobby was unethical, too.

TWO INVESTIGATIONS

Into these charges and counter-charges of unethical lobbying two congressional investigations were begun simultaneously—one by a special committee of the upper chamber under the chairmanship of Senator Hugo L. Black of Alabama; one by the rules committee of the house of representatives, under the chairmanship of Congressman John J. O'Connor of Manhattan.

Inasmuch as both of them were anti-lobbying committees it was suggested that they join forces, becoming a joint committee.

It was a suggestion which promptly was turned down.

Why? The consensus was that Chairman Black's committee's purpose was to acquire the administration of unethical lobbying, but to convict the holding companies; that Chairman O'Connor's purpose was vice versa.

NEITHER WOULD YIELD Besides, Chairman Black and O'Connor both are of the type of lawmakers known to the Washington correspondents as "publicity hounds".

Neither was willing to yield premier prominence to the other. So they "went it" independently.

Chairman Black got the first breaks.

Associated Gas & Electric is one of the most far-reaching of holding companies. Testimony before Black's committee revealed the fact that Basil O'Connor, a New York lawyer and a brother of Chairman O'Connor, of the river committee, had received a small fortune in legal fees from A. G. E.

Black rubbed this in. Parenthetically, Basil O'Connor is an ex-partner of President Roosevelt, but this wasn't so much emphasized.

O'CONNOR'S TURN However, Chairman O'Connor had his turn.

Howard C. Hopson is A. G. E.'s "king".

He was wanted by both committees, as the star witness of each—and he couldn't be found. The man-hunt for him became first-class publicity.

Just as it was at its maximum the O'Connor committee did find him. Or maybe he tipped the committee off as to his whereabouts.

The Black committee was green with jealousy. It tried to take him away from the O'Connor committee. The O'Connor committee wouldn't give him up.

HOPSON'S CHOICE

Of course Hopson had his preference.

He liked much better to be sympathetically questioned by Chairman O'Connor than to be mercilessly grilled by Chairman Black.

It likewise made a political difference to Chairmen Black and O'Connor.

As to the dispute between the two houses, however, I don't think that either particularly cared—the senate was pro-Black because he is a senator; the house of representatives was pro-O'Connor because he is a representative.

They are childishly opposing teams, even when partisanly alike.

Army Maneuvers To Be Started

(International News Service) PINE CAMP, N. Y., Aug. 20.—Deploying over the 100 square miles of sun-baked plains and tangled thickets where for the next ten days the first army will stage the most extensive peacetime maneuvers in American history, 35,000 troops moved toward the "jumping off" point, awaiting orders sending them into action.

Work of organizing their camps ended, regulars and National Guardsmen from ever point on the northeastern seaboard put the finishing touches on preliminary training for their forthcoming battle.

Rifle, bayonet and infiltration tactics occupied the infantry units, with division commanders eager to bring their troops to top notch efficiency pitch before Wednesday, when the first of the combat actions start.

Swimming Is One Of Principal Events At Camp Phillips; Boating Popular Too

Swimming is one of the most popular of the activities at Camp Phillips these days. The Girl Scouts take their dips on regular schedules and enjoy every minute of the time.

Some idea of the progress they have achieved was shown in a special exhibition for visitor's day. There were races for non-swimmers, beginners and the more advanced students of the art. In the non-swimmers race were Betty Robison, Elsie Mundy, Dawn Cartwright, Jean Allen, Norman Dixon, and Elveta Miles. In the beginners race were Esther Schaller, Betty Jean Kemp, Helen Metz and Betty Marshall. In the overhand race were Helen Milton, Dot Robins, Betty Raney, Dot Devlin, Virginia Jones, Mary Louise Meehan and Louise Shaffer. In the racing backhand stroke, Mary Keefe, Patricia Blaine, Muriel Zeitler, Betty Raney, Dorothy Devlin and Marian Conner took part, and in the sidestroke race appeared Jean Copeland, Marjorie Allen and Eleanor Book.

In the "drowning" rescue, Edwina Conner was the "victim" and Louise Owen the "rescuer." Those taking part in the "aquatic" wedding were Louise Owen, Dot Robins, Elizabeth Robins, Marian Conner, Audrey Bridenbaugh, Dorothy Wallace,
